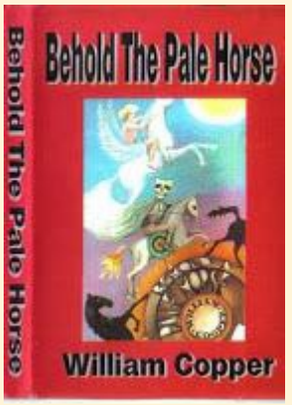
Silent weapons for quiet wars

The urban legend says that on July 7, 1986, in an auction of used material from the North American Navy was held, a second-hand IBM photocopier, in which a document of about twenty was found. thirty pages titled 'Silent weapons for quiet wars'. The document in question, with its corresponding Classified labels, Top Secret and others, was dated in May of 1979 and it was presented as an introductory technical manual on Operations Research, and although (presumably for security) it did not carry signatures or logos of the people or Organizations that drafted it quickly attributed its authorship to related individuals. with the Bilderberg Group, officially a 'think tank' or 'discussion club' formed by the most powerful international figures in the political and financial fields.

The document was published in 1991, included as an annex in Milton's book. William Cooper, Behold The Pale Horse (in reference to one of the 4 horsemen of the apocalypse).

Whether the real author of the document was Cooper himself or not, it was an introductory manual. used by the US Navy and was intentionally or accidentally leaked, perhaps it is of little importance, and more so considering the circumstances and Cooper's own death.

William Cooper, a former Air Force officer, became known as a writer and radio host defending conspiracy theories on various topics: from the shadow government that ruled the new world order, even regarding the assassination of Kennedy, while covering up data about UFOs. In 2001 he was shot dead by the police in the garden of his own house when they were officially going to arrest him for tax crimes He tried to flee. Needless to say, the defenders of his theories had a very clear idea. different from what really happened. As you will see, a fertile ground for the Theory of the Conspiracy.



Regardless of its dissemination in the book, the document in the issue spread quickly across the Internet, where it is available in English and in different translations, complete or fragments of it, with the full text or with added comments...

You can consult it in Spanish by searching for the most popular translation given to it. Title: Silent weapons for quiet wars. Although it may not be the best silent weapons for covert wars it would have been a bit repetitive, and translate as undercover, secret, or discreet perhaps it would have distorted the original title too much.

And what's the deal with the darn document?

Well, it's really a kind of theoretical/practical manual on how to manipulate the society through the financial system, the economy, and the media, with pseudo-technical information in which the economy is treated as a social science or engineering and it is compared to pure sciences such as physics or biology, with which it is established various parallelisms and analogies.

According to the document, we are already immersed in a third world war, although discreet. as described in an introduction, in which we had been for 25 years (in 1979, which is when is closed) the international scale, whose objective is social control, for which are used like weapons (the "silent weapons" of the title) the so-called "social automatons" predictable" that would result from the application of systems engineering techniques and of massive data processing in economics and social sciences.

All science is essentially a means to an end. The means is knowledge.
the objective is control.

I'm leaving you some more quotes like the previous one, because they are worth it:

This publication should be far from the scrutiny of public opinion. Otherwise, it could be technically interpreted as a formal declaration of internal war.
Furthermore, whenever a person or group of people in a position of power
It is important to use such knowledge and methodology for economic conquest without the knowledge and consent of the public, it must be understood that there is a state of war internal between this person or group of people and the public.
La solución a los problemas de nuestra época requiere un abordaje despiadadamente candid, without interference from religious, moral, or cultural values.

According to the document, the technological advances that have occurred since the end of the World War II, particularly in the fields of computing and telecommunications and the energy enabled unprecedented control mechanisms for the power elites until then, but they could also end up being used by the general public to end up disputing that power.

In 1954, those in positions of power had recognized that it was a matter of time, of just a few decades, before the ordinary public was able to reach and to dispute the cradle of power, and before the essential elements of the new technology of silent weapons should be accessible for a public utopia just as they are to achieve now a private utopia.

From there, applying social Darwinism and appealing to natural selection more ruthless ("...it was admitted that a nation or a population that did not use its intelligence did not they were better than unintelligent animals. Such people are pack animals "domesticated by their own choice and consent." It is justified that for the maintenance of the new world order, of peace, tranquility, and order, was created a series of weapons, of a new nature adapted to this type of war, against the people themselves, for...

...carry out a permanent stealthy war against the American public with the objective of displacing social and natural energy (wealth) from the undisciplined mass and irresponsible towards the hands of some more worthy, self-disciplined, and responsible.

The ultimate goal is to achieve a state of a fully predictable, foreseeable economy. last manipulable instance:

To achieve a completely predictable economy, the elements of the lower classes of society must be completely controlled, that is, they must be tamed, subjected to y assigned to a long-term social duty from an early age, before they have the opportunity to ask themselves questions or to question the convenience of the matter.

For this, some specific techniques are described. For example:

The quality of education provided to the lower classes must be of the worst kind, in such a way that the gap of ignorance that isolates the lower classes from the upper classes is and remain incomprehensible to the lower classes. With such initial disability, even the best elements of the lower classes have little hope of leaving the lot they have has been assigned in life.

This form of slavery is essential to maintain a certain level of social order, peace and calm for the upper leadership classes.

And what are these new weapons like?

Some literal quotes extracted from the document can give you an idea of where to go. from the shots (never better said):

Everything expected from an ordinary weapon is also expected from a silent weapon, it just they differ by their way of functioning. [...]

They do not produce obvious explosive noise, do not cause apparent physical or mental harm, nor they clearly interfere with nobody's social daily life.

They produce, however, an unmistakable "noise," causing unmistakable physical damage and mental, and they unmistakably interfere in everyday social life, that is unmistakable for a trained observer, for one who knows what to look for.
The public cannot understand this weapon, and therefore cannot believe that it actually exists. being attacked and subdued.
The public can instinctively feel that something is wrong, but this is due to nature. technique of this silent weapon, they cannot express their feelings rationally, or approach the problem intelligently. Consequently, they do not know how to ask for help, and do not They know how to team up with others to defend themselves.
When a silent weapon is gradually applied, people adjust, adapt to it. presence, and they learn to tolerate the repercussions on their lives until the pressure (psychological via the economy) becomes too big and they sink.

Just as in engineering, a certain structure is deliberately subjected to stress and crash tests in order to study their results to predict how it will behave in its real use, the same is done with the economy:
...the prices of goods are subjected to a shock, and the reaction of the consumers.
The echoes resulting from the economic shock are theoretically interpreted with computers, and this is how the psycho-economic structure of the economy is discovered.
So it can already be predicted and manipulated how families will respond to a price shock, and society becomes a well-controlled animal with the reins on hands of a sophisticated computer-regulated accounting system that controls energy social.
Finally, each individual element of the structure falls under computer control once personal preferences are known, and this knowledge is guaranteed by associating informatically the preferences of the consumer (universal product code, UPC; barcode codes on products) with each individual consumer identified...

Basically, what it says is that: 'with a mathematical foundation and data Sufficient, it would be almost as easy to predict and control the economic trend as the trajectory of a projectile. "Of course, that was only beginning to be possible with the development of the computer science and information and communication technologies.

The following extends over several pages in establishing parallels between the economics and physics, specifically modeling economic flows and the agents involved as if it were a component of an electrical circuit: conductors, resistors, capacitances in capacitors and inductances in coils, or what he calls the 'amplifiers' "economic" which are "the active components of economic engineering", and that, as Every amplifier receives an input signal and produces an increased output signal. function of a control signal:
The simplest form of economic amplifier is advertising.
If from a TV a advertiser talks to the viewer as if they were a twelve-year-old, so due to suggestibility it will probably respond or react to that suggestion with a response as devoid of critical sense as that of a twelve-year-old child, and that suggestion will affect your financial reserve, making you expend your energy to Buy that product on impulse when I pass by the store that sells it.

According to the document, what underpins the entire economic system is on one hand the availability of raw materials and energy and on the other hand the consent of the people to to work for and for the system in order to achieve a status, a social position, and to occupy a placed as high as possible in a social hierarchy:

Each social class tends to guarantee its own income level, controlling the class immediately lower, therefore it preserves the class structure. This ensures stability and security, but also the government from the top.

As time goes by and education and communication improve, the elements of the the lower class of the labor and social structure realizes and envies the good things that the members of the upper classes have. They also begin to have knowledge of the energy systems and the ability to impose their rise in the class structure.

This threatens the sovereignty of the elite.

If the rise of the lower classes can be postponed long enough, the elite can obtain the the domain of energy, and those who consent to work will no longer be an essential source of energy.

Until absolute control over energy is established, the consent of the people to work and to allow others to manage their lives must be taken into account, otherwise it could happen that people interfered with the final transfer of the sources of energy in the hands of the elite.

It is essential to recognize this now, public consent is still the essential key to release energy in the process of economic amplification.

That is to say, the first victory to be achieved is CONSENT, the first the strategy that needs to be implemented is ENTERTAINMENT and the first objective to to ensure is the DEPENDENCE.

The CONSENT means not only that the public works on the wheel of the system by own will, but also offer huge amounts of their own data voluntarily Silent weapons operate on data obtained from a docile public through legal means.

Such as all the data that we are required to provide or communicate to the authorities, for example the one mentioned in the document, via tax declarations:

The information consists of the mandatory delivery of well-organized data contained in the federal or national tax forms, collected, systematized, and presented by the same taxpayers and employees.

Logically, this was written before the advent of the Web and of course before social networks. social, but to further feed the conspiracy theory: Have you considered How much information do we offer today completely voluntarily?

Another devastating quote:

When the government is able to collect taxes and confiscate private property without fair compensation, is an indication that the public is mature enough to give up and consent to being enslaved and being the object of legal abuse.

A good and easily quantifiable indicator of when it's harvest time is the number of citizens who pay income tax despite the obvious fact of not receive a service in exchange from the government.

ENTERTAINMENT, understood as fun, but also as distraction and confusion

Experience teaches that the simplest method to use a silent weapon and win the Public control is, on one hand, to keep them undisciplined and ignorant of the principles. basics of the system, and on the other hand keep it confused, disorganized, and distracted with insignificant things.

This is achieved by doing the following:

Turning off their minds from their spirits; sabotaging their mental activities; providing a low-quality public education program in mathematics, logic, system design and economics; disincentivizing technical creativity.

Occupying their emotions, increasing their self-indulgence and their excess in physical and emotional activities, through:

The incessant emotional confrontation and attacks (mental and emotional violation) with constant bombardment in the media of sex, violence, and wars – especially on TV and in the newspapers.

Satisfying their desires excessively (junk food for the mind) and depriving them of what what they really need.

•Rewriting history and law and providing the public with manufactured distractions for in this way divert their thoughts from personal needs to priorities totally imposed from the outside.

All this will prevent them from obtaining their (real) interests and prevents the discovery of the technology of silent weapons for social control. The general rule is that there is a profit in confusion; the more confusion, the more benefit.

Therefore, it is best to create problems and then offer the solution.

Doesn't this sound too much like the famous Circus of 'bread and circuses' of the Romans? Let the public be distracted with the games (with their football team, with their national team) with the trash TV and the constant bombardment that TV offers.

In any case, just in case it wasn't clear, the document itself provides a small summary:

Media: Keep the attention of the distracted adult audience away from the real social problems, captivating him with issues of no real importance.

Teaching: Keeping the public ignorant of true mathematics, of the true economy, of the true law, and of true history.

Shows: Keep public entertainment below sixth grade level primary.

Job: Keep the public busy, busy, busy, with no time to think, back to the farm with the other animals.

And finally, DEPENDENCE, that is to say, the psychological reasons why the people it allows an elite to govern it, and can be summarized as follows:

The main reason why citizens of a country create a political structure is a subconscious desire or longing to perpetuate their own dependency relationship from childhood.
Simply put, they want a human god who eliminates all the risks of their life, they with pats on the head, kiss their bruises, put a chicken on each table, dress them,
I wrap them up at night and tell them that everything will be fine when they wake up the next day.

According to the manual, this public behavior arises from fear, laziness, and convenience. and makes the welfare state a useful strategic weapon that can be used against itself. society (the Bread of "panem et circenses").

Most people want to be able to subdue or even kill those human beings who interfere with their daily life, but they do not want to confront the moral and religious issues that such an act could generate.
Therefore, they assign the dirty work to others (including their own children) to maintain they clean their hands of blood. They babble about the treatment that humans give to animals.
but they sit down to eat a delicious hamburger from a whitewashed slaughterhouse that is going down the street but does not see.
But even more hypocritically, they pay taxes to fund a professional association of hitmen, called politicians, and then they complain about government corruption.

Moreover, according to the author of the document, people want to have authority and power. to do things, but they are not willing to accept the responsibility that it entails, and for Hello 'delegation' in the rulers and politicians:

The people mandate the politicians in order to be able to:

- Obtain security without having to organize.
- Get action without having to think or reflect.
- Steal, injure, and kill others without having to contemplate life or death.
- Avoid taking responsibility for one's own intentions.

And this is the style of the entire document. It's a bit simple to be a manual. real, perhaps too pseudo-technical to be dressed with a certain authenticity and probably too pamphleteering at times (certain passages seem written didactically from the point from the perspective of someone who has to defend themselves against silent weapons rather than from the point of view of whom they have to be used). But it contains certain ideas to think about.

We already know that knowledge is power (that's why deep economic knowledge hidden in public education, precisely because of the use made of the economy against the population) and it is undeniable and surprising the large volume of data about all of us that is necesitan para afinar este tipo de modelos de control, datos que cada vez más están available.

But in any case, and precisely for that reason, the knowledge of these techniques and strategies can also give us power to use them as defense just as they can be used against we how weapons.
